

June 2009 Update on Molly!

How is Molly's training going?

Molly finished a 6 week Puppy Class with Michelle McCarthy from K-9 HomeSchooling. Dr. Moore and his son Tobin took Molly to that class. Michelle also dropped in for a few sessions at the office to help the staff learn how to work with Molly. So far, we have been focusing on good manners and toilet training. In June, Molly started her first official Therapy Dog training.

What will Molly do at the office?

Molly is here to help kids feel better about coming to the doctor's office. Sometimes kids are nervous, and sometimes they just don't feel well. Molly will visit with kids in the waiting room, keep them company during their appointments, and- eventually- give out stickers.

Can I pet her?

Yes! Molly is fully vaccinated and we don't have to worry as much if she comes in contact with someone who has an infectious illness. Molly still has a lot to learn about being a therapy dog. She is going to school to become a certified therapy dog. She is practicing by visiting patients in the waiting room and even keeping some kids company during their appointment.

How is Molly working out?

Molly is doing a great job. Like any baby, she is changing all the time. She is sleeping less and wants to play more. She loves the activity of the office and wants to meet all the children.
